433 economic situation in Bornu is determined to a large extent by 439 changes in the world market price of export items which are now 433 a vital part of the local economy. The Kanuri are an agricul-241 tural people whose staple crop is millet. Along with millet, the main crop is peanuts, grown for sale and ultimate export.
241 Every farmer grows millet for his family. Should he have a [438] surplus he sells it in the local markets. Most farmers also 244 raise peanuts as well. The nuts are bought by local trading [442] companies, acting as agents for the government controlled [455] Groundnut Marketing Board which buys the entire crop and [439] sells it on the world market. Cow hides and sheep and goat 433 skins are also brought by the trading companies for export, 237 and represent an important part of the total economy. The West 439 African Pound is the basic currency unit and the shilling is 436 the unit of trade in the remotest sections of the province.
Maria Theresa dollars are still in evidence but are rarely used as currency.

439 A network of European trading companies exists throughout 442 Northern Nigeria. Almost all of them have canteens run by 473 European agents scattered in larger towns throughout the region.
The largest of these is the United Africa Company, a subsidiary of Unilever. Others, John Holt and Co., Société Commerciale du Oest Afrique, Compagnie Française du Afrique Occidental, and A.
G. Leventis and Co., are multi-million-dollar companies with [452] head offices in England or on the Continent. They all buy peanuts, and hides and skins, and they buy through a complex system
